Logistics Readiness Squadron vs Logistics Support Center

I asked guest columnist Lt. Col. Garrie Denson of the LSC to explain to all of us how our LRS folks have transitioned to the new LSC mission and the impact to us. The bottom line is, with our LRS gone, those folks are busy learning new missions, for which I am very proud. However, they are not the go to people for base supply questions. Col Pearsall

By Lt. Col. Garrie Denson

As a result of our Total Force Initiative with Langley AFB, several functional areas have changed or been eliminated as the 192 Fighter Wing associated with the 1st Fighter Wing. Many unit members have changed positions and while the faces remain the same, the duties are quite different.

One function that has been significantly impacted is the Logistics Readiness Squadron or as most know it, Base Supply. The 192d Logistics Readiness Squadron was officially inactivated 31 Sep 07. Reason? The 192d's integration with 1st FW will bring no additional workload the 1st LRS cannot handle. However, the Guard Bureau determined three critical 192d LRS functions must be retained at Langley. They are Clothing Issue, Mobility Weapons Management and Mobility Bags (MOBAGS). Each function is managed differently in the Guard, as the active duty funding for these items comes from a different funding source. Since the Logistics Readiness Squadron was eliminated, we aligned the three remaining functions under the Mission Support Group.

Clothing Issue is temporarily located with 1st LRS in building #330 (across from the new running track) and is accessible from the loading dock on the back side of the building, facing the runway. MOBAGS will be relocated to Langley by mid February 2008, but the exact location has not been finalized and for the moment remains in Sandston. Later in 2008 both functions will be consolidated in the new one-stop Mobility Processing Center, building #355.

So where did the rest of the 192d Logistics Readiness Squadron go? All full-time LRS positions have transitioned into the Combat Air Forces Logistics Support Center or CAF LSC which just happens to be located in building #330, the 1st LRS building. This is a new and highly visible mission for the 192d Fighter Wing and the Air National Guard. Virginia is the first and only Air National Guard Wing providing Guard personnel to the Logistics Support Center!

The LSC's mission is to provide rapid global supply support for all Air Force Weapon Systems and ground support equipment, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. 192d LSC personnel work side-by-side with active duty counterparts making decisions on the allocation of critical aircraft spares, directing the flow of vital assets and ensuring they are shipped and delivered as quickly as possible to the Warfighter - wherever and whenever needed.

By the end of January, the LSC will be realigned into the Global Logistics Support Center or GLSC and report under Air Force Material Command (AFMC).

The Virginia Air Guard is leading the way in the Total Integration of Forces within the Global Logistics Support Center. There are 12 unit members working in the LSC; two of which, MSgt Jerry Talley and MSgt Scott Neischel, have been appointed to Weapon Systems Management Teams. The number assigned to the LSC will continue to increase through 2008 until there are 52 full time employees.

As noted above, many of the faces are the same as those you have worked with for years in Base Supply at Sandston, but these folks are now part of the Global LSC with a new mission and new duties. Please remember that LRS is not LSC and LSC is not LRS.

New ID Card, New Requirements

By TSgt Jim Orbin

In October 2000, military members started seeing a new form of ID being issued. Department of Defense began a new era by issuing a new "smart card" or common access cards to military members and government employees, and contractors. The smart card gives the capability to digitally sign documents, access computers, and build information.

Today with the new and updated capabilities that the smart card can process and store, new security is needed. DoD has implemented a new national policy to obtain an ID card. All individuals who need a government ID card must now show proof of identity in the form of two documents (see chart). Also, this applies to individuals who need to renew. Why the new requirements? "As we all know 9/11 changed us forever in how we do business and how to keep a vigilant eye on security. Everyone should have at least two forms of identification with them," stated CMSgt Michael Merry, 192 MSF/DPM.

Attached is the listing of primary/secondary documents that are acceptable. A primary source is any document that is listed in "Group A" (for dependents under 18, the sponsor's ID can be used.) A secondary source is any additional document from "Group A" or a document from "Group B". The most common will be an ID card or driver's license from "Group A" and a social security Card or birth certificate (not the Hospital one) from "Group B".

F-22A Raptor comes to U.S.A.F. Weapons School: keeping the torch of air dominance burning

by 2nd Lt. Jennifer Richard
Nellis AFB Public Affairs

NELLIS AIR FORCE BASE, Nev. – Maj. Micah Fesler, 433rd Weapons Squadron pilot and Virginia Air National Guardsman, delivered the 57th Wing's first F-22A Raptor here Jan. 9.

The aircraft is scheduled to be used by the U.S. Air Force Weapons School as it stands up the first F-22A Weapons School course.

The F-22A Raptor arrived here from a Lockheed-Martin facility in Marietta, Ga.

"Flying that F-22 was exciting because I literally picked it up from the factory," said Maj. Fesler.

The brand-new aircraft is the first of six Raptors the 433rd Weapons Squadron plans to have by September of this year.

The U.S.A.F. Weapons School is scheduled to hold a validation course for the F-22A program January 2009 and the first class of students July 2009.

"In the validation course, there will be six instructor pilots basically putting each other through the course," said Lt. Col. Pete Milohnic, 433rd Weapons Squadron commander.

This will prepare instructor pilots for the first-ever F-22A Weapons School course, in which they hope to teach three students.

Instructors have about 360 hours of academics to build, said Maj. Fesler. They have to build the syllabus, plan every sortie, and develop briefings for every sortie.

"It is a fairly large undertaking because we are starting with a blank slate," he said.

The process of standing up the F-22A Weapons School course needs to be a collaborative effort, said Col. Milohnic.

Members of the 433rd Weapons Squadron have been reaching out to Langley, Elmendorf, Holloman, and Tyndall Air Force

Bases—bases that currently fly or are scheduled to fly the Raptors, he said.

"We can't do this without their expertise," said Col. Milohnic. "They are the customers. We're making a huge effort to give them what they want."

With the addition of the Raptors, the 433rd Weapons Squadron will be flying both fourth-generation and fifth-generation fighter aircraft.

Having both F-15s and F-22s together in the same squadron is a huge step for the integration of air dominance assets, said Maj. Fesler.

1920

By SrA Meaghan McNeil - The F-22A pilots and maintainers have made the transition from the Falcon to the Raptor. The Support and Medical Groups have learned, met and exceeded the new and different demands of the total force initiative environment. But did you know that we are also currently integrating with the 480th Intelligence Wing, working with a brand new weapon system? And although the vehicles aren't, the mission is new to the 192d Fighter Wing.

The Distributed Common Ground System (DCGS) is a weapon system like no other in Virginia Air National Guard history. The 192d Intelligence Squadron – as of October 2007 – has approximately 100 people. The projection for growth in the foreseeable future forecasts an increase more than doubling the number of squadron members, said Capt. David R. Lands, Director of Operations for the 192d Intelligence Squadron.

And with the support we've received, this mission has become a meaningful, powerful endeavor. Even after the war is over, the potential exists for the Commonwealth to put to use the amazing capabilities of such unmanned aerial systems (UAS) as the Predator and the Global Hawk – both of which operate directly with Distributed Ground System - 1 (DGS - 1) here at Langley AFB, Va.

Intelligence Squadron: Fighting Global Terrorism

But for now, as the Global War on Terrorism continues, the capabilities that UASs possess have powerful benefits for everyone from the airmen to the politicians. Airmen fight the war from home everyday, making it safer, more flexible, and cheaper for budgets, taxes and America as a whole.

The effort is challenging, and “the tactics of the terrorists change almost on a daily basis, from Improvised Explosive Devices (IEDs) and Vehicle Borne IEDs (VBIED) to suicide bombs and insurgent attacks on civilians and coalition forces...” said Lands. As the squadron continues to meet the competency level required of the demanding new mission, our Air National Guard unit will be able to bring continuity to yet another integrated mission with the active duty.

Drill Weekend Childcare

By Angeli Wade, Wing Family Program Coordinator

The Langley AFB Director of the Child Development Center, Dennis Milner, is willing to work with us in The 192d Fighter Wing to provide convenient childcare to our children on UTA Weekends.

The fee for childcare is based on total family income. In order for the Center to be able to open, we need a minimum of 32 children who will take advantage of the care. Fees will need to be paid up front because the staff is paid and will be here based on your commitment.

Next UTA is February 9 and 10. In order for the facility to be available to us, we need your response and paperwork by January 18! I will be working with them to make sure that you are contacted as quickly as possible with the amount of the fee so that you can return your checks to secure your place immediately.

Drop-ins are not possible for this service due to their need to plan for the correct number of staff members per child. You will need two forms: AF1181 and DD2652. If you have not received these forms via Langley disseminated email, please contact me (see information below).

Due dates for future babysitting commitments are:

March UTA (1): February 15

March UTA (2): March 9 at the end of UTA.

May UTA: April 11

Please turn all paperwork in to me or send it to my address below. Follow up with an email (angeli.wade@langley.af.mil) so that I can be sure to look for it. Thank you for your attention to this and for your patience as we work the bugs out of this new benefit to our families.

Let's Celebrate!

By Captain Antoinette Allen
State Equal Employment Manager

February is Black History Month and this year's theme is "Carter G. Woodson and the Origins of Multiculturalism". Mr. Woodson is known to many as the "Father of Black History". Dr. Woodson was the son of former slaves, but earned his Ph.D. degree from Harvard University in 1912. In 1915, he founded The Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (the Association). In 1926 the Association, under Dr. Woodson's leadership, established Negro History Week to coincide with the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass. In 1976 it expanded into Black History Month to celebrate the contributions made to the world by those of African descent. Mr. Woodson was once quoted to say "In the long run, there is not much discrimination against superior talent". Please join in on the various events hosted this month.
